Girl Scouts of San Jacinto Council recently had the pleasure of working with StudentsLive on the Wicked “For Good” Day for Girl Scouts in Houston.

Leading up to the workshop, GSSJC advertised the opportunity to our members—StudentsLive provided the flyer and text, and I distributed the information. The interest in the workshop and the attached matinee ticket was phenomenal—Wicked has a lot of brand recognition, so between that and the details about the workshop (and perks the workshop would provide), our council saw a lot of interest in the workshop, including lots of last minute phone calls up to the day before the workshop, asking if there was still available space!

I had the opportunity to attend the workshop—which was well put together and presented to the girls. Despite some last minute changes in venue and staffing, the workshop came together beautifully and all the participants (over 400 girls and adults) were fully engaged the entire time. Girls got to participate in a “game” show, submit essays for an essay contest beforehand, learned a lot about Wicked’s history and development, learned an actual dance routine from the show, and got to go home with a special Wicked patch. The winner of the essay contest got a backstage tour. I was not sure how the workshop would go, with the large numbers, but I was impressed the entire time by the attention to detail and the high quality of the entire experience.

StudentsLive did an excellent job with the workshop and the participants from GSSJC enjoyed every minute of the experience! I would highly recommend their workshops!

Sincerely,
